A3A7030 says it all, a confused soul. This nocturnal (even by BITSian standards) ghotu could be the only guy on campus loyal to his registered instructors. His humility can drive you mad when his claims of making C's and D's in his CDC's are always proven false. This crossword wizard is an instant database and analyser of his peers' CGs. Ever ready to lend a helping hand, his open-air tuition classes have helped in improving many a friend's grade. Pursuing novel femme fatales every semester and ending up with friends' sympathies has come to be his way of life. His philosophy: "Do your duty and leave the result to divinity".

"Life is a special grub; the sweets are limited"; coming up with a statement like this might take you a lifetime, but then... we don't call him 'Haristotle' for nothing. Truly a EEEite by choice he can repair anything from a walkman to a key board. Although he considers sleep 'God's gift to mankind' he is prepared to sacrifice it for his sole ambition to be a very successful manager. With his determination, diligence and friendly nature he is sure to grab all the sweets that life has to offer.

This absent-minded genius has an uncanny knack of losing things. When it comes to acads though, he's as stingy as any other Gujju: not letting a single grade slip by. He does not like doing things alone, he makes sure others join him... especially when he's putting T. Basically a fun-loving person who is loved by 'one' and all, he is also a brilliant jammer, an avid reader, and a member of the Department of Lights. He would consider himself privileged if he could do his Masters from Stanford, but we feel that with his extraordinary genius Stanford would be privileged to have him.

Sarvanan alias Soba hailing from erode is a EEE'ite by choice... a choice which he still ... repents. This genial sportsman had a peculiar craze for being a ball-boy which he continued even while captaining the bits volleyball team. A proud member of 'Never Seen Oasis Club', his pastimes include playing snooker and attending classes. This hardcore Ganguly fan is a great all rounder himself and also resembles Ganguly. This ADIDAS model is more interested in applying make-up (to himself not for test). Pessimist to the core, he is always sorrow stricken. He is all set to do his Masters in Communications.

Undoubtedly, the chemist of our wing, she has enough supplies to put all Pilani chemists to shame. Enthused about giving birthday bums and messing up with the cake on everyone's birthday... but on hers, she'd have her own turns. This "100 watt smile" girl with the largest all-boys-friend-circle to her credit is the most versatile speaker. This audacious guy with his incessant bravado can almost convince you that he is the bravest of the brave, i.e. until he sees a lizard or a girl. Nevertheless, the intensity and passion that he exhibits for the things he holds close to his heart are awe-inspiring. For the more mundane things though, he requires consistent support. His parents write weekly letters describing road-crossing techniques and basics of good health and hygiene. This "man of rock" knows where he is going with a CEERI project under his belt. Always with a song on his lips (sometimes to the disdain of his wingies) this guy is our candidate against the likes of Shankar Mahadevan and Hariharan. A workaholic, his hours of sleep are often a subject of debate. A level-headed character, one can never read the emotion from his face. Workaholic- this isn't very strong an adjective to describe this chap. When he was a child, he learnt to walk, learnt to talk but no one told him what sleep was. A perfectionist to the core, his infectious enthusiasm for work can move even the most disinterested guy into action. Intensely passionate about food, he can devour just about anything in 2 minutes flat. His stars don't predict a girl in his life before 30's. But you can still find him religiously scanning the oasis souvenir looking for that 'miss right'. Destiny, he believes, is in his own hands and he is determined to make a mark in Communication Networks.

Siva Kumar, alias nana hailing from Tirupati, is better known as "SILK" for obvious reasons. This highly enthued movie buff is also interested in playing Cricket and is an expert in Carom. The so-called unlucky number (013) turned out to be his luckiest number ever, after his PS1 at Bangalore, because of a compsci dance clubber. A water jug has never been a part of his room as his thirst is quenched more often by EEE books- "THE ELIXIR OF HIS LIFE". He has been a nightmare to all the 10p's. He is sure to be another Chandrasekhar (Father of Indian Microelectronics).

Sleeping, eating and playing covers his entire vocabulary of verbs. His honest and sincere efforts to study in his room (the walls covered with inspirational quotes) take the back burner as the God of Sleep emerges the ultimate winner of the day as well as the night. He has quite a few trophies to his credit, courtesy his department. An ace bowler, his talents have taken his team to great heights. 'All arguments against it but all beliefs for it', that's his favourite line, nobody's understood why. This charming Saggitarian lives in a fantasy land where he is a wizard and the rest are muddles. He cares for people, sometimes a little too much, even going to the extent of wishing them, a "happy birthday", months in advance. His resourcefulness and strength of character have made him a member of the senate. His ultimate ambition is to be the CEO of Wizards Inc. his own firm.

In the first few minutes with him, he comes around as a very serene and compact guy. But get a little closer with him, and you see a very enthusiastic and exuberant guy.
